Hi there

Thought I'd say hi as I'm a newbie here. I found out about the site through The Herald. I was a bit of a lurker there rather than a poster. I found that it, along with many forums, often have an element that turn to personal abuse or such like. How great it was to look at this forum and see the high standard of posters - both for talking about the subject rather than looking to abuse people and for the quality of the writing. (I just hope any contributions I make are up to it!)

Welcome to Scotsgait !

Let's hope it stays that way. So far, so good - and despite the fact that our views range right across the spectrum from right to left. Me ? I'm a moderate :laugh:

Thanks for the warm welcome everybody. :)

It's good to hear differing opinions on the forum. There's always someone who has thought of something that hasn't occurred to me and I like to think I'm open to changing/modifying my opinion on things. In saying that, I'm a nationalist and I can't really imagine anyone convincing me to be a unionist!

Hi Meg I've just been a member for the last ten days. I've been in the chat room and found it quite stimulating - there is also a lot of banter which lightens things up. Hope to speak to you soon.
